DALLAS | LEADERS IN LAW

Compassion and Strength

Family law expertise and a culture of collaboration allow Burrows Law Group to deliver exceptional results to clients.

“There are no winners in a divorce,” says Adam Burrows, CEO and president of Burrows Law Group. “We fight for outcomes that matter to our clients, but we also guide them through the process with care and kindness. The last thing we want is for our clients to get stuck looking in the rearview mirror. We’re here to be a compass pointing them toward a better, brighter future.”

Burrows Law Group has deep roots in North Texas, serving clients from across the metroplex since the 1990s under the leadership of Burrows’ father, Dale, the founder of the firm. When his father retired in 2015, Burrows took over and has led the firm through significant growth, establishing a reputation as one of the region’s most diligent, capable, and tenacious family law firms.

“We care, we listen, and we’re responsive when our clients need us,” says Burrows. “It’s not just a matter of returning emails and phone calls. It’s letting the clients know that we’re here for them, and that they are more than just a case number to us. We build a foundation of trust by being candid from day one. We’re not here to tell them what they want to hear; we’re here to guide them through a tough situation.”

SIDE BY SIDE

At Burrows Law Group, collaboration is key, with attorneys and staff regularly coming together to brainstorm strategies on individual cases.

Each member of the team has a unique skill set, allowing the group to offer a wide range of family services including family law, high asset divorces, complex child custody issues, adoption, LGBTQ+ divorce, and expert forensic analysis.

“The more eyes that are on a problem, the better the result usually is for the client,” Burrows says. “We very much work as a collaborative unit.”

This collaborative approach is especially useful in settlement negotiations, where the team can examine each client’s situation from a variety of angles. As a trial attorney, Burrows recognizes that reaching a fair settlement through negotiation is not always possible.

“People hire me to take on the tough cases that really can’t be settled,” he says. “I was raised and mentored by a great trial attorney. When clients need a bulldog in the courtroom, I’m there.”

However, most of the firm’s work takes place outside the courtroom, and Burrows uses his trial practice to provide a balance to the collaborative team.

“It may be my last name that’s on the wall, but this firm is so much bigger than me,” he says. “Every person in this office was hired for their skills and their dedication to getting the best possible outcomes for our clients.”
